Edward Muller, Ph.D., is Professor of History at the University of Pittsburgh. He received his M.A. and Ph.D in Geography at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and taught for several years in the Department of Geography at the University of Maryland before joining the Department of History at the University of Pittsburgh in 1977. He is a past chairperson of the Department of History, former director of the Urban Studies Program, a fellow of the university's Institute of Politics, and a Fulbright Research Scholar in New Zealand. Author and editor of books, chapters, and articles on the historical geography of North America, particularly cities, he was a co-editor of The Atlas of Pennsylvania (Temple University Press, 1989), and edited North America: The Historical Geography of a Changing Continent (Rowman & Littlefield, 2001); DeVoto's West: History, Conservation, and the Public Good (Ohio University Press, 2005); and Uncommon Passage: Traveling through History on the Great Allegheny Passage (University of Pittsburgh Press, 2009). He co-authored Before Renaissance: Planning in Pittsburgh, 1889-1943 (University of Pittsburgh Press, 2006). Active in public history, he was a founding member and former Chair of the Board of Trustees of the Rivers of Steel National Heritage Area and a past member of the Board of Trustees of the John Heinz History Center.

Lisa Schroeder is Chief Executive Officer of Riverlife: a non-profit organization with the mission to reclaim, restore and promote Pittsburgh's riverfronts. Under her leadership, Riverlife is working to create "Three Rivers Park" as Pittsburgh's grand, 13-mile continuous loop of riverfront parks and trail which is nearly 80% complete. The project follows a Vision Plan for Pittsburgh's Riverfronts, which was created based on citizen input and received the American Institute of Architects' Honor Award in Planning and Design and the International Downtown Association Merit Award.

In the past decade, Riverlife has raised over $120 Million to support operations and construction of capital projects through a unique public-private partnership that includes public agencies, private landowners, foundations and corporations. Riverlife has overseen construction of new riverfront trails, parks, water landings and lighting resulting in more than 4 billion in investment in real estate development along the banks of the three rivers.

Lisa has become an advocate and a spokesperson for the power of sustainable waterfront development to transform cities. In addition to appearing on NBC Nightly News, she has been a featured speaker at international conferences in Lisbon, Naples and Toronto and delivered keynotes to the annual meetings of the American Institute for Architects, the International Downtown Association and the World Waterfront Expo. She has been recognized as one of the most outstanding Women in Business by the Pittsburgh Business Times (2011); as one of Pittsburgh's "Top Environmental Heroes" by Group Against Smog and Pollution (2009) and has received an Honor Award by the Southwestern PA Women & Girls Foundation (2005).

Ms. Schroeder is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of William Smith College and received a Masters of Science from Columbia University where she was awarded a William Kinne Fellows fellowship for her work teaching children about architecture and historic preservation. In addition to her work with Riverlife, she serves as a Fellow at Carnegie Mellon University's Heinz School for Public Policy and a Director on the Boards of Dollar Bank, the Regional Industrial Development Corporation and The Pittsburgh Foundation.

Sala Udin was born and raised in Pittsburgh's Hill District, attending the city's Catholic and Public Schools. In his early days of community organizing, Sala was responsible for or substantially involved in the establishment of multiple community development projects, some of which exist until this day. Udin later established the Multicultural Training Resource Center in San Francisco where he published substance abuse and AIDS information in 13 languages and produced the first local informational video on AIDS and African-Americans.

In 1995, Sala Udin was elected to Pittsburgh's City Council where he served for 11 years as the voice of the poor and oppressed. While active in various capacities during his tenure on City Council, Sala was elected by his colleagues to serve as the Chairman of the Finance and Budget Committee for three consecutive 2-year terms. He also led the fund-raising, design and construction of Freedom Corner, which currently serves as a staging point for civil rights activities and civil/human rights heroes, as well as an educational center and work of art. In addition, he led two citywide referenda to amend the City Charter to include the Citizens Police Review Board and a jobs program called Pittsburgh Works, led the city's contracting of a Disparity Study which led to an unprecedented number of minority and women jobs and contractors involved in the demolition of the former Three Rivers Stadium and the building of Heinz Field and PNC Park, and oversaw the largest new housing construction in the history of the City of Pittsburgh – Crawford Square, Bedford Hills, Oak Hill and Manchester Hope VI communities.

Sala Udin's extensive experience and leadership is recognized in his oversight and service on several boards, as well as in his current position as President and CEO of the Coro Center for Civic Leadership in Pittsburgh, one of six Centers, whose local mission is "...to advance ethical and effective leaders who share a commitment to civic engagement", as they serve to build "...a leadership pipeline to foster collaboration within and across Pittsburgh's business, nonprofit and government sectors."

2012 UAA-SAGE Marilyn J. Gittell Activist Scholar Award and Lecture

The UAA-SAGE Marilyn J. Gittell Activist Scholar Award and Lecture have been established to highlight the importance of field-based urban scholarship and promote the dissemination of work by activist urban scholars. The inspiration for this award and lecture is the career of Dr. Marilyn J. Gittell, former Director of the Howard Samuels Center and Professor of Political Science at The Graduate School at City University of New York. Over the course of her career, Dr. Gittell became well-known for research that dealt with difficult policy issues, her direct engagement with communities impacted by those issues, and her ability to challenge both scholars and policymakers to consider the outcomes and implications of that research. Thus, the award seeks to honor the contributions of a scholar whose research record shows a direct relationship between activism, scholarship and engagement with communities. The lecture is presented by the urban scholar who has been selected to receive the award. The recipient of the award will be an individual who is, or has been engaged in field-based research in the host city of the annual conference.

For 2012, we are pleased to announce the recipient of this award is Dr. John M. Wallace Jr., Philip Hallen Chair in Community Health and Social Justice, in the School of Social Work at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Wallace is the lead investigator for the Center on Race and Social Problems' Comm-Univer-City of Pittsburgh Project, an integrated program of research, teaching, and service that seeks to examine and directly address challenges faced by economically disadvantaged children, families, and communities. Dr. Wallace also is a co-investigator on Monitoring the Future, the National Institute on Drug Abuse's ongoing national study of drug use among American youth. His recent research efforts have focused on comprehensive community revitalization initiatives, racial and ethnic disparities, the effect of crime on clergy and congregations, and violence and substance abuse among adolescents. Dr. Wallace earned his PhD and Master's degree in sociology from the University of Michigan, and his BA in sociology from the University of Chicago. His work has been widely published in books and peer-reviewed journals, including DRUG AND ALCOHOL DEPENDENCE, AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PUBLIC HEALTH, and the ENCYCLOPEDIA OF SOCIAL WORK. He serves on several local and national boards. Dr. Wallace is a community leader and pastor of the Bible Center Church of God in Christ in the Homewood neighborhood.

Come and learn about Dr. Wallace's inspiring work at the Friday afternoon Activist Scholar Plenary, scheduled for 4:00-5:00pm in Grand Ballrooms 3 and 4.

The UAA-SAGE Marilyn Gittel Activist Scholar Lecture and Award highlights the importance of field-based urban scholarship in the tradition of Marilyn Jacobs Gittel. Marilyn Jacobs Gittel was an outstanding scholar and a community activist at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York who wrote seminal works on citizen participation, was founding editor of Urban Affairs Quarterly, (now known as Urban Affairs Review, one of the leading academic journals in the field of urban research), and was an impassioned participant in one of the most controversial social experiments of her time (NYC school decentralization). She was deeply committed to training young urban scholars of color and women, and taught them to understand the workings of democracy from the ground up, using the methods of field research. The Award and Lecture recognize an outstanding urban scholar whose work shows direct relationship between scholarship, community engagement and activism and who has engaged in field-based research in the host city of the Association conference.

Conference Guidelines

- Sessions are 85 minutes long. Do not wait for a crowd to form. Start promptly!
- Reserve at least 15-20 minutes for open discussion.
- Panelists have 12–15 minutes depending on size of panel. If a panel has five papers, each presenter has 12 minutes. If a panel has three or four papers, each presenter has 15 minutes. It is best to plan on 12 minutes regardless of the size of your panel since last-minute changes could affect your allotted time. Reading of papers is not acceptable.
- Moderators are responsible for introductions, keeping the time, and alerting presenters of remaining minutes, as well as managing the open discussion period. Each room contains one-minute and five-minute “warning” signs that moderators may use to alert presenters of time limits. Moderators are not discussants. Each moderator is responsible for making a brief introduction (one minute) of each paper. IMPORTANT: Please do not re-order the sequence of papers as they are listed in the program. Conference participants often plan their attendance of a session based on the order of the papers.
- If a moderator does not arrive, we ask that the first presenter take on this role.

2013 Call for Participation

Proposal Deadline: October 1, 2012

43rd Annual Meeting of the Urban Affairs Association
San Francisco, California April 3--6, 2013

Building the 21st Century City: Inclusion, Innovation, and Globalization

[With special tracks on Media & Urban Life, and Urban Issues in Asia & the Pacific Rim]

The narrative surrounding urban affairs is often filled with negative images. From racial and economic inequality to crime and inadequate housing, cities bear much of the brunt of society's problems. Urban scholars have articulated the causes and consequences of these ills. However, discourse on urban areas has understated the relative success of certain cities in addressing many of these challenges. Taking San Francisco as an exemplary case, the 2013 conference theme asks urban scholars to share the ways in which governments, individual residents, neighborhood groups, non-profits, and others have improved urban areas across the globe.

San Francisco embodies much of what is right about cities, but it also faces problems common to urban areas everywhere. It has earned a reputation as an inclusive city, one that champions citizens' rights and provides them significant access to the city's spaces and amenities. Despite its general orientation to inclusion, San Francisco has also experienced significant gentrification and has been the site of great contestations. Struggles over the "right to the city" have helped to shape its unique social, economic, and political landscape. These tensions raise important questions. Who has access in richly diverse cities? How is that access gained? When faced with exclusion, how can the marginalized penetrate local institutions and have a voice in larger society?

These questions are even more pressing when one considers that cities like San Francisco are at the center of innovation and the global economy. Its proximity to Silicon Valley begs the question: how can cities use the technology within their borders and across their regions to improve quality of life for their citizens? Its position on the Pacific Rim makes it an important economic location in an increasingly integrated world economy. How can cities take advantage of their role in the international economy to improve quality of life in the future? As cities develop in the 21st century, this conference theme asks its participants to describe and explain how cities everywhere deal with issues of inclusion, innovation, and globalization. The city of San Francisco serves as an appropriate context for this conference, because it has had major success in addressing these issues, while continuing to face new challenges.

In keeping with the tradition of UAA Annual Meetings, we encourage proposals that focus on an array of research topics including:
